| Fortune roulette. The user gets to bet on different squares and instead of betting money, they bet their fortunes. Every time their amount of fortune changes, a new prophecy is given that matches the amount of fortune they have. | • Spinning Roulette table with sound• Betting system similar to real roulette• Fortunes that depend on the money won or lost. | People who like risk and adrenaline when they decide their fortunes. It is valuable to the user because they get to have fun gambling with their own futures. | • More realistic animations for everything• Themed locations like Las Vegas, Macau, etc. |

| Traditional artsy Tarot web app fully embracing the early 1900s (coincidentally public domain) Rider-Waite Tarot deck aesthetic, meant for those interested in Tarot as a subject/skill as well as trendy wiccan/esoteric enthusiasts who think it looks cool | • Selecting your desired Tarot spread (1 Card Answer, 3 Card Past-Present-Future, Celtic Cross Spread)• "Mystical-Enigmatic" stylization of each of the card's meanings, try to act really mysterious• "Omen of the day" daily mood/fortune/thing | Pamela Wicca, got into Twitter/TikTok subcultures and now wants to read tarot cards and LARP as a witch online. Uses this app to immerse themselves into the aesthetic and prep for putting symbolically-relevant cards on her moodboard. | • "Library" of all tarot cards and meanings for those who want to browse through all cards.• "Love reading," "Friendship reading," "Academic reading," etc, put a spin on the normal 1-Card readings• Bias towards positive cards, or to negative cards |
